The film is a remake of Dino Risi's 1974 Italian film Profumo di donna, adapted by Bo Goldman from the novel Il buio e il miele (Italian: Darkness and Light) by Giuseppe Meo. The film stars Al Pacino, Chris O'Donnell, and Mary Steenburgen, with Pacino in the lead role. The story follows an American prep school student, Charlie (played by Chris O'Donnell), who is assigned the job of assisting an irritable, blind, medically retired Army lieutenant colonel, Mr. Collins (played by Al Pacino). Despite the initial conflict and misunderstanding, Charlie learns to appreciate Mr. Collins's wisdom and kindness, and Mr. Collins learns to trust and rely on Charlie. The film explores themes of friendship, acceptance, and understanding, as well as the challenges of living with a disability. The film was a commercial success, grossing over $100 million worldwide, and received positive reviews from critics, who praised Pacino's performance and the film's emotional depth. It was nominated for three Academy Awards, including Best Actor for Pacino, and won several other awards, including the Golden Globe Award for Best Actor - Motion Picture Drama. Overall, Scent of a Woman is a touching and inspiring film that showcases the power of human connection and the importance of seeing beyond differences.

As any Korean drama, Scent of a Woman starts of with the cliches: an indifferent chaebol (Kang Ji Wook) falls for a poor spinster (Lee Yeon Jae—who looks like she's in desperate need of a make-over) who turns out to have a terminal illness. The supporting male lead (Dr. Cha Eun Suk) has eyes for the heroine but could not confess his feelings.
